People and communities make sense of life through the sharing of stories. It's our ability to imagine and tell our own stories, in our own way that helps us create the world we want to live in, and build connections with others.

Storytellers were our first magicians, our first history keepers, society builders, culture shapers and spiritual and emotional filters, making sense of the world long before written communication.

The nationally touring, critically-acclaimed singer-songwriter, author, musician and monologist is considered by fans and peers alike to be one of the best storytellers in the country for his celebrations of commonality and humanity through comic narrative songs and confessional spoken works.

This free performance is sponsored by Bill Graustein and open to the public. The topics may not be of interest to children under 15.

Register on line. Seating is limited.
